Yee Yo Keuk Resorts To Many
Shrewd Deceits To Defeat
Capture

Nearly seven months ago Yee Yo Keuk, a Korean, while awaiting sentence for assault with a deadly weapon, also on a charge of burglary, escaped from the city jail, and has been at large ever since. On several occasions Yee has come to close quarters with the police, but each time he has managed to preserve his liberty. A few months ago, after the Korean had shot and badly wounded a Japanese laundryman, who had delayed delivery of his washing, he was traced to a house which was surrounded by a dozen members of the police and detective force, but managed to elude his pursuers, and escaped with a fusillade of shots. One day in the early part of last week Yee Yo Keuk was again brought to bay by detectives and a revolver duel resulted in which no damage was done, and which resulted once more in the desperado getting clean away.

A day or so after he burglarized the residence of a Japanese contractor named Nagawa, in Boretan street, and the following morning visited the home of Y. Kobayashi, near the McCully street, and after cutting the telephone wires to prevent an alarm being turned in at the police station, awoke the folk in the house and withdrew, after firing a shot from his revolver at a crowd of assembled Japanese.

There is no doubt that the Korean is a very bad man and that he will stop at nothing when his liberty is threatened. He weighs nearly 180 pounds and is one of the strongest men of his nationality in the islands. For some time he held the Japanese wrestling championship and it is said that there are very few Japanese in Honolulu today who would hold their own with him in a fight.

In appearance Yee Yo Keuk is stockily built, and his face is badly pockmarked, a circumstance which one would think would make his apprehension a comparatively easy matter.

The Korean, however, is as crafty as he is strong and desperate. There are in Honolulu today two other Koreans who are about the same size as Yee Yo Keuk, and whose faces also are pockmarked. It is believed that the Korean has enlisted the services of one or both of these individuals who so closely resemble him, and that it is his plan to have one or both of them hang about certain parts of town and so have their presence reported to the police. When a match is set on foot, while the original Korean operates unsuspected somewhere or district.

It is that is that nearly every day the detective bureau is informed of the presence of a man resembling Yee Yo Keuk in some part of town, and two reports from entirely different districts have been received at the same time.

The desperado Korean is also said, on good authority, to employ an accomplice who does his work in the guise of a buyer of old bottles. Pushing a barrow, and with a gunny sack slung over his shoulder, the employed bottle buyer goes from house to house and while ostensibly engaged in his assumed business, takes the opportunity of inspecting the premises, finding out all the information that he is able to relative to the occupants of the house, when they are at home, and it is likely that when a match is set on foot, the reports of the news to his employer, who is thus enabled to go straight to the house, accommodate himself to circumstances, and make a good job of his nefarious enterprise and a clean get away.

The bottle buyer always visits a house during the hours when it is reasonable to suppose that the master of the house is away, and as a rule has no difficulty in securing the information he desires, after paying a good price for the bottles he has purchased, and further by ingratiating himself with the woman in the house, by a line of smooth conversation.

While Yee Yo Keuk is well known among the local Korean community, he is so feared by his countrymen that they are afraid to report his whereabouts to the police, even when they seem to be no chance that he can escape.

A Night Provoker
This fearfulness on the part of the Koreans is due to the desperado's oft repeated threat to torture and kill any man who betrays him. There are countless men of Yee Yo Keuk's in Honolulu today who could tell a blood curdling story of ordeals through which the big brigand has made them pass, because he had heard, or otherwise suspected, that they were in league with the authorities to deliver him up, and more than one of them is said to bear marks of Yee Yo Keuk's Swedish atrocities, which they will carry to the grave.

Another thing which militates against the capture of the Korean, is the fact that he goes forth only at night, thereby rendering his capture almost impossible, unless it be red handed.

The Korean is said always to carry two revolvers, both of 38-caliber and of the best make, as well as a liberal supply of cartridges, in a double ended satchel of original design, and probably fashioned by himself.

DINNER COFFEE CROP ON HAWAII

Louisson Plantation Near Paauilo Will Yield Five Thousand Bags of Beans

"Anyone who can spare the time should take a run out to see Ape Louisson's coffee plantation near Paauilo," said James Barron, the well known Hilo man, to the Hilo Herald, after he had returned from a visit to Louisson.

"Why," continued Barron, "Louisson will harvest five thousand bags of coffee beans this season. He has four hundred acres of land under coffee and the crop is a bumper one. The trees are simply laden with the berries and the branches are bowed with the tremendous crop."

"Trees that were planted eighteen years ago are as bright and as green and as full of berries as the youngest of that year bearing. Mr. Louisson has, evidently, by experience and by reading, found out the secret of successful coffee cultivation and he is being rewarded for his industry and belief in the future of coffee. Many other people have thrown up coffee growing a long time ago, but Louisson stuck to it. There is only one thing needed now, and that is a tariff on foreign grown coffee so that the domestic crop can have a show against the alien stuff."

"Shade is a great thing in coffee cultivation and Mr. Louisson is an ardent advocate of that feature in cultivation methods. He, when clearing his land, years ago, left all the old trees standing so that they would shade the coffee trees. In fact, in places where there were not many old trees he planted hundreds so as to get a necessary shade."

"Louisson has one thousand acres in fee simple and if he could make sure that a duty would be put on foreign grown coffee he would go ahead with the further development of his estate."

"The coffee plantation is indeed a thing of beauty now-a-days and the sight is a lovely one, with all the trees in bearing. Later on, when the berries ripen, the sight will be still more beautiful."

"The Greiville Robusta variety of coffee has proved to be the best for the locality Louisson's plantation is in, and trees of that kind are doing wonderfully well."

"As they have to depend entirely upon rainfall at Louisson's estate immense tanks have been constructed to hold water and about a dozen are to be seen on the place. More tanks are being installed and will be ready soon."

"The milling and drying apparatus is of the latest kind and the berries are pulped and dried in record time. The green berries are nearly all shipped to Tery's mill in Hilo where they are roasted and bagged for market."

"The coffee industry is an ideal one for family cooperative work and its development through a favorable tariff would provide plenty of work for men, women and children. The industry could never conflict with the sugar industry, as coffee does best on the land that is too high up for cane cultivation."

"Mr. Louisson always has worked hard for a duty on foreign grown coffee and he declares that if such a duty were arranged many people could, without much capital, embark upon coffee growing to great advantage to themselves and families."

Mr. Barron declared himself to have been delighted with his experience among the coffee trees and he brought a couple of branches from one of the trees to Hilo just to show what a tremendous crop of coffee berries is being raised at Louisson's plantation.

Nicaraguan Canal Won't Be Needed Says An Engineer

Owing to the tying up of the Panama Canal, many employees, mainly in the operating divisions, are being furloughed or given vacations. Some are being dismissed. In a number of cases employees of the operating division have been transferred to other divisions where they are needed, owing to the increased work, notably the dredging division, which has taken over most of the Canal pilots as tug masters and captains of dredges.

It has been learned that it is the intention of Major-General George W. Goethals, governor-general of the canal zone, to force a temporary canal through the slide as quickly as possible, and that the dredging division, which has been waiting since the Canal closed, and then again shut off trans through the Canal until all danger of slides has been definitely ended. This probably will not be less than six months, according to the best available estimates.

Those who are worrying over the fact that, after having cost more than $275,000,000, the Panama Canal may come to be considered a failure, should take some satisfaction out of the statement of Arthur P. Davis, director of the United States Reclamation Service, and considered one of the greatest engineers in the world. "The Marine slides which are occurring in the Canal can be foreseen but not prevented; they happen mostly in the wet season, when the hillsides become saturated with moisture and the water pressure starts the earth sliding down the sides of the cut."

"The problem of clearing the Canal of this menace is not unsolvable, but simply one of time and money. In regard to the cry that has been raised that Uncle Sam will have to go back to his first love and cut a canal across the Isthmus of Nicaragua, Mr. Davis says it would take about ten years to accomplish this, whereas the trouble at Panama will, without doubt, have been conquered long before that time, so that the slides affecting traffic goes."

NATIONAL GUARD REVIEW

First Infantry Makes An Excellent Showing

THE first regimental review of the First Infantry, National Guard of Hawaii, by Governor Pinkham, yesterday afternoon in Capitol Square, proved highly satisfactory. The executive and commander-in-chief, expressed pleasure at the showing and appearance of the regiment, which is an all-German organization, and with the manner in which the staff and officers, many of them new to their duties, handled their troops.

Brigadier-General J. P. Wisner, commanding the Hawaiian Department, U. S. A., and Rear-Admiral C. J. Rosier, U. S. N., who sat with the Governor in the reviewing stand, complimented him on the regiment's showing, considering the fact that seven of the twelve regular companies have been organized in the last three months and that it was the first appearance of the regiment of many of the new officers.

Streets along the line of march were crowded with humanity, hundreds of civilians lining the route, a welcome Sabbath diversion, and the plaza in front of the reviewing stand, at King and Richards streets, was packed with spectators.

One of the foremost features to win favorable comment from civilians and officials in the reviewing party was the regimental band, which led the parade, played throughout the inspection and maneuvered in true military style.

Everywhere were heard remarks of surprise at this organization's musical ability. Two explanations were given for it: that practically all of the musicians have played in similar organizations before, some being former members of army bands, and that they have been rehearsing faithfully several weeks in preparation for yesterday's event.

With true military precision the regiment moved from the armory, debouching into Hotel street at half-past one o'clock, the appointed hour. Headed by the band, the companies, fourteen in all, tramped up Hotel street to Fort, down Fort to Merchant, and came to a rest with the band in Mill street, just north of the Opera House.

In double line the troops extended more than three blocks from that point to the center of Bishop street.

Governor Inspects From Auto

A few minutes later the Governor, in an automobile, passed slowly down the line to Bishop street, while the troops stood at attention for the inspection. Ordinarily he would have returned by the same route, passing behind the columns, but because of Merchant street's narrowness it was impossible, so he returned through Queen street to Mill street and thence to the reviewing stand.

In the car with the Governor were Brig.-Gen. Samuel I. Johnson, Adjutant-General, N. G. H.; Brigadier-General Wisner, commanding the regular army, and Lieutenant Kimball, his aide; and U. S. Grant, son of the late General Ulysses S. Grant.

Then the guardmen shouldered arms and the long lines, swinging sharply to the right, turned down Mill street, then to the left into the grounds in front of the judiciary building, again to the left into King street and with a final left face swung back up that thoroughfare, passing the reviewing stand in column of platoons. Immediately after leaving the reviewing stand they reformed columns of squads for the march back to the armory. Because of the dense mass of humanity which packed Richards street they did not attempt to take that route but proceeded to Alakea street, Hotel street and returned to the big drill hall.

As the band, leading, reached a point directly in front of the stand in which the Governor and other reviewing officers sat it swerved into the center of the plaza and took station, playing steadily while the troops swept by.

Maneuvers Are Well Done
Because of the crowded condition of the thoroughfare and its limited space some of the maneuvers, naturally difficult, were accomplished with a neatness unexpected, especially in the new companies but everyone was performed without confusion or hesitation.

At the beginning of the review an incident occurred which for a moment threatened serious trouble, but it was averted largely by the presence of mind of Major Rose, commanding the Second battalion, the first in line after the band. A street car proceeding out from Fort street passed the reviewing stand, the motorman apparently intent on cutting a swath through the guard's ranks. The band was compelled to swing abruptly to the right to escape accident and the boys of Company E, spread across the double track and far into the street would have been unable to pass the obstruction or without making a shift that would have disrupted the line for reviewing purposes.

Major Rose halted his command, however, and held his ground until the car had passed.

The city received from the territorial treasurer $132,000 net week on account of its share of the taxes collected on the second installment for the current year.

had been compelled to run back to Richards street.

In point of numbers the largest company of the fourteen was Company I, Capt. S. H. Ware, which consisted of twelve squads containing more than one hundred men. This was known formerly as the First Recruit Company. All the troops marched well, the new ones particularly exciting favorable comment as showing the effect of the hard drilling they have undergone the last few weeks.

Order Of The Review
They passed the reviewing stand in the following order:

Second Battalion, Major Rose, commanding—Company E, Capt. Charles E. Carter; Company G, Capt. B. K. Kane; Company F, Capt. E. H. Hopkins; Company H, Capt. L. G. Blackman.

First Battalion, Maj. M. M. Johnson, commanding—Company A, Capt. H. P. O'Sullivan; Company B, Capt. Paul Soper; Company D, Capt. G. E. Johns; Engineering Company, attached to the Second Battalion for purpose of the review, First Lieut. J. W. Caldwell; Company C, First Lieut. E. H. Barry; Company I, Capt. S. H. Ware.

Third Battalion, Maj. W. W. Neely, commanding—Company M, First Lieut. W. H. Hampton; Company L, Capt. W. M. Ables; Company K, First Lieut. Boetwick; hospital corps, Major Kilbourne.

In the reviewing stand with the Governor, in addition to those who accompanied him in the automobile, were the following:

Representing the army and navy—Rear-Admiral C. J. Rosier, commander of the navy station; Major Conklin, chief of staff of the Hawaiian Department; Lieutenant-Colonel Atkinson, Second Infantry; Captain Lincoln, Second Infantry.

Representing the National Guard of Hawaii—Col. C. W. Ziegler, inspector general; Lieut. Col. J. W. Short, Q. M. G.; Maj. J. D. Dougherty, aide; Maj. J. M. Camara, Q. M. C.; Maj. L. W. Redington, A. G. D.

Representing the legislature—Senators C. F. Chillingworth, A. F. Wirtz, E. W. Quinn, and Col. C. P. Jaouca, and the house of representatives, C. W. Brown and S. S. Paxon; also Mayor John C. Lane, representing the city of Honolulu.

Program of Events For Y. M. C. A. Swimming Meet Next Saturday Night

1—220-yard swim.
2—Underwater swim.
3—Apple relay, novelty.
4—50-yard swim.
5—Diving.
6—30-yard relay (four men to a team).
7—Spank the baby high dive.
8—50-yard back stroke.
9—100-yard swim.
10—Plunge for distance.
11—50-yard breast stroke.
12—240-yard relay (six men to a team).

The swimming meet at the Y. M. C. A. next Saturday night promises to be a stellar attraction. At a meeting of representatives of the four competing clubs last Saturday night the above program of events was adopted.

The Healanis and Myrtles will be two of the clubs entering, while the Knights of Kamehameha and H. A. C., two of the regular Y. M. C. A. clubs, will be participants. Some of the best swimmers in the city will compete and the Y. M. C. A. pool will be open for practice from twelve noon until nine-thirty o'clock every day and evening.

Ten of the twelve events will count for points, with two novelties to entertain the crowd. In all but the relay events five points go to the winner, three to the second and one to the third. The relay counts ten, six and three points to the first three teams.

A handsome pennant will be awarded to the winning club. Competent officials have been selected by the committee in charge and programs will be provided for spectators. The admission price will be twenty-five cents for all seats.

With the coming of warmer weather, swimming has increased among the Y. M. C. A. members and over fifty a day now make use of the pool. The elimination of a charge for swimming during the winter months has made it more popular among the younger members.

The committee in charge of Saturday's meet consists of Edgar Methven, chairman; A. B. Carter, Myrtles; Sam Kahalewa, Knights of Kamehameha, and Roy Graham, H. A. C.

Following the review Capt. S. H. Ware and First Lieut. L. McCullan of Company I entertained informally members of that company and officers and men of all the other companies in the armory. A Hawaiian glee club supplied music and light refreshments of soda and sandwiches were served. It was a get together event, at which the men discussed the incidents of the test they had just undergone.

Manager Sam Alo of the Chinese had his tenants on the diamond last Sunday, says the Maui News of November 26, against the Asahis and defeated them by the score of 5 to 1.

The Asahis scored their only run in the first inning, and no runs were allowed them thereafter by the Chinese pitcher, Diamond Chang, and his associates.

The Chinese scored three runs in the first and one each during the third and seventh, making five runs to their credit.

In the second game the St. Anthony's outlasted their opponents, the Waikapus, in every department of the game, the score standing 7 to 1 in their favor. Both teams failed to score in the first inning, while in the second, the St. Anthony's scored three runs, two in the fourth and one each during the eighth and ninth, on hits and a few errors on the Waikapus' side.

The Waikapus were saved from being handed a whitewash in the last inning when Cochet scored. While he was on third with one down and J. Rodriguez at bat, Catcher Pomba of the Saints was somewhat nervous and threw wild to third.

"Little Gink" Cummings at short for the school boys was the star of the game by stopping some hot grounders and pulling off double plays.

The score by innings follows:

C. A. C. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Asahis 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0
St. Anthony 0 3 0 0 0 0 1 1 7

The city received from the territorial treasurer $132,000 net week on account of its share of the taxes collected on the second installment for the current year.

Score first half, 13 to 8; goals made by Hoffman, 4; Robinson, 1; fouls, 3. Boyum, 2; Meinecke, 2.

Second half—Hoffman, 4; Robinson, 4; fouls, 1; Boyum, 3; Meinecke, 1; fouls, 1.
